CLARENCE CRYER JR., MPH, CCHP

The Impact of Valley Fever on Correctional Health Care Ethics

Mr. Cryer is the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of the Substance Abuse Treatment Facility and State Prison (SATF) in Corcoran, California, the largest of the state's 34 institutions and one of eight (8) located in the Coccidioidomycosis endemic area. His career in correctional health care began as an Administrator at Jackson Health System's Corrections Health Services Division; overseeing inmate health care in one of the nation's largest county jail systems; Miami-Dade County Corrections and Rehabilitation (MDCCR). His previous leadership in public and private sector correctional health care systems includes county jails, detention centers and state prisons in Florida and Georgia. His areas of special interests include: performance improvement, national accreditation standards and health care ethics.
